Your airline can assist you with getting on and off the plane.

It's important to discuss your requirements with your airline well in advance of your flight.

Your airline will make arrangements based on your requirements to access the aircraft.

We recommend confirming with your airline that they have the specific resources booked to assist you off and on the aircraft, including whether you require a specific type of lift, e.g., an eagle-lift.

What if I am travelling with an assistance animal?

Assistance animals are very welcome at Brisbane Airport.

Assistance Animals will also be subject to security screening, which may involve a pat-down search or search with a hand-held magnetic wand around the animal's harness.

Special toilet and watering facilities for assistance animals are available in both our terminals.

You'll find them:

3 Security screening

What do I need to do at security?

It is a requirement that all passengers and visitors and their belongings are screened before entering the departures areas of the terminals.

Whilst there's no 'opt out' for passengers with disabilities, you can request an alternative method of screening if you have requirements which preclude you from participating in the routine airport screening process.

Routine screening includes:

- Body scanning
- Belongings scanning
- Explosives test

Please refer to www.homeaffairs.gov.au/about-us/what-we-do/travelsecure for more information.

You can read more about the process online:
www.bne.com.au/security

TIP: If you think you or someone you are travelling with will require special assistance at security screening points, please notify your airline before you arrive at the Airport.

What if I am flying internationally?

In addition to regular security screening, when flying internationally, passengers will need to comply with limits on travelling with powders, liquids, aerosols and gels in carry-on baggage.

At a glance:

- In carry-on baggage, passengers are only able to take liquids, aerosols and gels in containers up to 100ml in size.
- These restrictions affect items such as drinks, creams, perfumes, sprays, gels, toothpaste and other similar substances.
- Any liquids, aerosols and gels must be stored in one (1) resealable transparent plastic bag that measures approximately 20cm x 20cm.
- For inorganic powders such as salt, talcum powder and sand a limit of 350ml or 350g per passenger applies.
- There is no limit on organic powders made from living matter such as food and baby formula though these items must all be presented at the screening point. Powders do not need to be placed in a clear plastic bag.
- Duty free goods in one (1) sealed bag can be taken on board.
- Exceptions apply to baby products, medical (prescription and non-prescription) items and special dietary requirements.

For more information visit:
www.bne.com.au/flyinternational

What should I do if I have medical implants?

If you have artificial limbs or prostheses, speak to a screening officer for assistance.

What should I do if I have artificial limbs or prostheses?

If you have artificial limbs or prostheses, let the Screening Officer know before you walk through so alternate screening can be arranged.

What should I do if I have walking or visual aids?

Walking aids and visual aids, such as long canes, will be subject to security screening. You can ask a Screening Officer for assistance if you need help walking through the screening process.

What should I do if I use a wheelchair?

If you use a wheelchair you will still need to be physically screened. If you can stand, but not walk, you will be cleared with a hand-held metal detector. If you are unable to stand, you will be screened by a pat-down search undertaken by an officer of the same gender. If you would prefer this to be done in a private room, just ask a Screening Officer to arrange this.

TIP: If you require assistance through screening, please make your Airline aware. If you have any questions please ask a Screening Officer.
